CONFERENCE OF ALLIES AGREED ON ALL TOPICS EXCEPTING RUHR

Buoyant Optimism Felt
With Progress Made and Prospect of Complete Accord Is Bright.

FRENCH WOULD KEEP
MEN ON RAILROADS

Method by Which Safety of Military Forces Are to Be Assured Is Subject of Discussions.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch
and the Chicago Daily News.
LONDON, July 21.—Agreement
on all but one question, that respecting French withdrawal from the Ruhr, having been reached at the allied conference, it is predicted that the final sessions will be held on Wednesday and Thursday. Buoyant optimism marks the attitude of all the delegations, especially the French and Belgian.
President Herriot and Thoms during the week-end impressed upon their colleagues the necessity for eliminating all petty difficulties
and centering their attention upon
the main points in argument and proceeding manfully for settlements of the few points remaining vague or in dispute.

When Committee Number Two,
dealing with economic unity of the block, met today, it expected to hear a report from the subcommittee dealing with French withdrawal of railway men and military from the industrial areas. France insists that when the whole operation is completed, there shall remain in strategic lines 3500
French and 1000 Belgian railway
men, failing to reach an agreement upon this point, it is likely that the committee will make its report to the plenary session Tuesday, allowing the principal delegation to hear upon the delicate issue. In many of its phases
this problem of French withdrawal offers a wide scope for compromise.

For instance, the allies might agree to maintain a very small numerous of Franco-Belgian railway men on the outskirts of the Rhineland for use in case of extreme necessity.

Friends of Ramsay MacDonald
insist the British Premier wants to see Germany's delegates called in before the end of the week, but much depends upon the work of the next plenary session.

The American representatives say it is too early to raise hopes of completing signature of the proposed agreement during this conference, but that it is possible that this happy conclusion will be reached.

RADIO DIRECTION FINDER SUCCESSFUL GUIDE FOR AIRMEN

New Device Given Practical Test by Army Flyers in Thick Fog.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, July 21.—The
radio direction finder for airplanes
was given a practical test recently when Capt. W. H. Murphy and Lieut. M. J. Lyon, Army Air Service, made a flight from McCook field, Dayton, to Columbus, O.
This was the first use of the radio direction finder by an airplane,
under actual necessity.

A thick fog hung over the terrain. Lyon, the pilot, had never flown with the aid of a radio direction finder, and was not entirely sure of the efficiency of this system. For this reason the flight was started by compass.

The fog was so thick that no
landmarks were visible and the plane was kept hovering close to the tree tops. A variable wind was blowing, and the two officers soon satisfied themselves that they would not be able to reach Columbus without some other aid. The plane used is known as the Radio DHF, and as soon as the direction finding system was resorted to, the correct course was laid and Columbus reached without difficulty.

On the return trip the direction
finding system was again resorted to from necessity. The weather was persistently unfavorable, there being a strong drift wind. The compass was found to be reading incorrectly and the flyers were obliged to depend on the radio.
Capt. Murphy made an interesting experiment on the return trip
which satisfied him that if two planes were flying the same course under radio direction and going in opposite directions, a collision
could be avoided by each going a little to the right of the "track"
and still be led to destination.

MODESTY-IN-DESS CAMPAIGN

National Council of Catholic Women Asks Members to Pledge Aid.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 21.—A campaign against immodesty in dress, actuated by expediency, is being conducted by the National Council of Catholic Women. Cards are being sent to the organization's 900,000 members throughout the country, asking them to sign a pledge to observe the "standards of Catholic teaching, particularly with regard to dress, reading and entertainment."

Mrs. Michael Gavin, national president of the council, who is a daughter of the late James J. Hill, said today the campaign would be extended to all the territories and possessions of the United States.

$250,000 ICE PLANT BARRED FROM OPERATING

Polar Wave Co. to Take Appeal From Permanent Injunction Granted by Judge Percy.

HOLDS NOISE WOULD DISTURB NEIGHBORS

Erection of Building at Penrose and Obear Would Have Been Completed Within Two Weeks.

A permanent injunction prohibiting the Polar Wave Ice and Fuel Co. from completing or operating an ice plant at Penrose street and Obear avenue was granted by Circuit Judge Percy today, upholding the contention of home owners in the vicinity that the plant would create disturbances.

Joseph Muckerman, general manager of the company, said he supposed an appeal would be taken.
The building, he said, required
about two weeks more work for completion, and represents an investment of about $150,000. It is fit only for ice-making, Mucker-man declared.

Suit Filed in January.
The injunction suit was filed by property owners, Jan. 28, about the time erection of the plant was began. The principal contention in the suit and in the recent hearing was that the factory would create loud noises. Persons living near other ice plants testified in support of this complaining, principally
about the whistling and unsubstituted conversation of ice-men as they appeared for their loads in the early hours of the morning.

In his decision Judge Percy declared the vicinity of Penrose street and Obear avenue is a residence neighborhood and that operation of an ice plant there would "render the enjoyment of life and property by the plaintiffs uncomfortable."

Would Disturb Sleep.
The operation of ice machinery
there would create loud and unusual noises and disturb sleep, the court held, and continued:

"The handling of ice by the company's drivers, and independent drivers, and the movement of horses and motor trucks, early in the morning and late at night,
would of necessity disturb the sleep and rest of the plaintiffs."

Erection of an ice plant on this site would have been prevented by the zoning law which was knocked out by the Supreme Court of Missouri last October. The city block in question runs east to Grand boulevard. The frontage along Grand boulevard was in a commercial zone, but the remainder of the block was in a second-residence zone. The City Plan Commission would have recommended an amendment to permit erection of this plant if the majority of property owners in the immediate vicinity had consented, but a majority consent was not forthcoming.

Buying was very heavy.

A cotton crop of 11,934,000
equivalent 500-pound bales, this year was forecast today by the Department of Agriculture in its first semi-monthly report.

The forecast was based on the condition of the crop on July 16, which was 68.5 per cent of a normal, as compared with 71.2 per cent on June 25 this year, from which the crop was forecast early this month at 12,144,000 bales.

$10 per bale. The condition of 68 bales proved lower than antici-

Defense Counsel Explain Unexpected Action by Calling It "Duty to Their Clients and Public."

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
CHICAGO, July 21.—Nathan
F. Leopold Jr. and Richard A.
Loeb, each 19 years old, today pleaded guilty of the abduction and murder of 14-year-old Robert Frank, May 21 last.

All that now stands between them and the gallows is the hope of their counsel to show that they were not fully responsible for their actions. The State, through its attorney, Robert B. Crowe, will resist this attempt, and will demand that both the defendants be hanged.

Introduction of testimony bearing on their mental responsibility
will begin Wednesday morning.
Barrow, Justice of the Peace,
said the plea of guilty came as an utter surprise. It was offered at a hearing which had been set to allow both sides to present such motions as they desired preliminary to the trial, set for Aug. 4. It came only a few minutes after Judge Cawley, Chief Justice of the Criminal Court, mounted the bench. Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for the defense, entered the plea.

This gives a strange and perhaps unprecedented aspect to the proceedings. It transforms it into an insanity hearing, with the defense pleading guilty. As is well known, insanity is a fully competent defense, and established as a defense
Thay and he would be accordingly found not guilty. Here, however,
evidence of mental irresponsibility
will be offered merely for the purpose of mitigating the punishment.

Defense Proposed Hearing.
Another unique aspect of the matter was when attorneys for the defendants proposed a joint conference between attorneys for the State and alienists for the defense, at which they might agree upon the degree of mental responsibility to be attributed to the defendants.
State's Attorney Crowe promptly opposed the suggestion.

A Visit to Leopold and Loeb In the Chicago Jail and Their Conversations With Reporters

Loeb Meets a Suggestion to Hold Trial in Stadium With Proposal for Sections
for "Rooters."

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 21.—An unprecedented amount of perfectly natural curiosity has been displayed about the personal characteristics of Richard Loeb and Nathan Leopold Jr., principals in the Franks murder case. Almost everybody who has had an opportunity to observe these youths has been beguiled to tell "what they really are like." The correspondents saw and talked to them for the first time today, and found his own previous impressions considerably altered by the personal meeting.

First and foremost, they are decidedly more juvenile, both in manner and speech, than the writer had anticipated. They are college boys, and Loeb might easily pass for a high school student. Their talk was the common chaff of the campus changed to fit their peculiar circumstances. Any mental picture of them either as intellectual supermen or as monsters is very difficult to sustain through a conversation with them.

Their humor, far from being sardonic, was of the thin and rather obvious sort that one expects to hear around fraternity houses. The colossal egotism which has been attributed to them was not apparent. They displayed the easy politeness natural in boys of good breeding. In fact, there is no denying the fact that both are decidedly likable, and they are liked by virtually all the fall attaches and reporters who have come in daily contact with them for the last seven weeks.

Cannot Talk to Each Other.

Naturally they do not discuss any of the aspects of their case which might affect the outcome of the trial.

The jail in which they are held is in the grimy manufacturing district a few blocks north of the Loop and adjacent the Criminal Courts building in which they will be tried. The jail is old and worn.

In the party which visited the youths were three young local reporters, assigned to the building regularly, the assistant superintendent, Hans Thompson, and the Post-Dispatch correspondent. We visited Loeb first. He is in an ordinary cell on the fifth floor. Leopold is on the opposite side of the building, a floor below. There is absolutely no chance for them to talk to each other.

The local reporters called Loeb "Dickie," and he called them by their first names. He was standing against the front bars when we came up, a slender, dark-eyed stripling, in a college gray tweed suit. In the prevailing youthful style, his coat was tightly buttoned up the front with four buttons. He had on a blue bow tie, and is dark hair was smoothly groomed.

Shakes Hands With Reporters.

His greeting to the reporters, whom he knew, was that usual between friendly and familiar youths. He thrust an arm through the bars and shook hands with all of them, and said, "Hello, Hans" to the officer. He was introduced to the writer in the accepted way, shaking hands, and immediately proffered cigarettes to all the visitors. He smiled and seemed glad to see us.

Almost immediately he said to one of the reporters, "I'm off of you." It seemed that the reporter had written a story about a reported plan to bribe the jurors and escape. The reporter, who incidentally was a student at Michigan University with Loeb, promptly blamed it on the re-write man.

"Come on, don't put that old stuff about the re-write man; I'm on to you," retorted Loeb, and while it was all said and done, there was a note of genuine coolness in his voice. Then he reached through the bars and took a newspaper from the reporter's pocket. It contained new photographs of Loeb and Leopold.

"I think that's the best picture that's been published," he said. Over the pictures was a stinging three-column caption: "Should Be Hanged, Says Jacob Franks" (Jacob Franks is the murdered boy's father). Loeb, surveying the pictures pleasantly, gave no indication of seeing the stinging caption.

Turning to the writer, he said politely: "Did you come here just to cover this case?" He seemed slightly surprised that it should warrant such attention, and his surprise deepened when he was told that most of the larger metropolitan newspapers were to be represented at the trial.

Suggests "Rooting" Sections.

One of the local reporters told him about the arrangements that were being made in the courtroom to accommodate the press—the additional desks, the new pressroom, the tickets and instruments of the press associations and telegraph companies, and he seemed genuinely interested.

Loeb for Leopold, then nine for Crowe (the State's Attorney), and a locomotive for Darrow (the defense counsel). Then, when there was a lull in the cheering, and everybody leaning forward to hear some very important piece of testimony, you could hear the telegraph instruments ticking, just like you do at a football game when everything is suddenly quiet." It was evident that the picture gave him considerable amusement.

He talked rapidly and easily, and with an engaging smile and intonation.

Visited by Sentimental Girls.

"You certainly are dressed up, Dickie. What's the idea?" inquired one of the reporters. "Why, I've got a big date tonight," was the bantering reply. "I wish you'd send your car around at 8 o'clock." Then he added: "Friday afternoon in the jail is just like Saturday night in a small town, you know."

Friday is visiting day.

Referring to a visit which he had received earlier from two young women, he said to one of the reporters: "A couple of tramps were in to see me a while ago. They said they were old friends. I never saw them before. I wish you'd look on the register and find out who they are." It is a fact that numerous sentimental girls have called upon the youths, claiming to know them.

After about 15 minutes of the same sort of thing, we departed. Loeb shook hands politely with the correspondent, murmuring the conventional, "Glad to have met you," and asked if the writer would be kind enough to bring clippings of what he wrote about him.

Leopold More Reserved.

The reputation which Leopold has established is formidable enough so that the reporter, who is his particular "Pet," went ahead and inquired if he would object to meeting a stranger. He said not, and, indeed, there was nothing in his manner to indicate that he might object. Leopold has the build of an athlete, although slightly under medium physique. His shoulders and chest are thick and muscular and his waist trim, the build of a quarterback, or a lightweight pugilist, and, in fact, he never participated in college athletics, but he has none of the softness to be expected in a bookworm and esthete.

Leopold has not the boyishness of Loeb, but neither did he exhibit the cold and hardened maturity which some reports have attributed to him. He joked, and told smoking car stories. One of these was in Hebrew dialect, and he told it exceedingly well. Contrary to expectation, he seemed more conversant with the situation than Loeb. One of the reporters chaffed him about his shirt being unbuttoned, and said: "You're getting careless, Babe."

"Wouldn't you" was the quick reply, accompanied by a fleeting drop of the eyelids. However, it was just a flash, and he was immediately laughing again. One of the reporters told him about the factious suggestion for holding the trial in the stadium, and he replied:

"Yes, if they would let Tex Rickard stage this thing we'd all be rich. I think an $8-20 split—40 for us and 20 for the Judge—would be about right." "I'm in favor of charging $12.50 for the public and $5 for newspaper men."

Denies He's Writing a Book.

A package of cigarettes was brought out, and Leopold immediately turned and held a carton of cigarettes through the bars. "I can't permit you to furnish cigarettes to my guests," he said.

"I hear you are writing a book of stories like Balzac's doll stories and Bocaccio's 'The Decameron'." How about it? he was asked.

"Get out of that," he warned. "I never heard of any such men as Balzac and Bocaccio." This was an admission that he would not talk about anything that might be connected with the testimony in the trial. It is expected that there may be some testimony as to the sort of literature he preferred.

As he concluded telling a rather ribald joke he said somewhat apologetically: "I tell these birds (meaning the local reporters) that kind of stories because I know they can't possibly print them. If I tell them anything, respect they write a story about it."

It should be explained that there was nothing morbid or unusual about the stories. They were precisely the sort one always hears in Pullman smokers or country club locker rooms where the males of the species gather.

Leopold made us good-by with some formality. He shook hands all around again and thanked the writer courteously for coming in to see him. He asked all the visitors to have another cigarette, before they went.

Appear to Be Normal.

Briefly, then, to sum up, both prisoners appeared to be perfectly normal, bright, well-bred, good-

you still offer a plea of guilty?"

"I do," replied Nathan, in a clear, low voice.

His features appeared animated and sensitive and he was obviously that he was under a profound strain, but he gave no unusual evidence of it.

Loeb was next called forward, and to him the Court repeated the same formula. In response to the question of whether he persisted in his plea of guilty, he replied: "Yes, sir." He appeared pale and slightly nervous.

Rigid Police Plans.

A crowd of perhaps 100 had assembled on the sidewalk outside the Criminal Courts building an hour before the hearing was to begin. They were a long way from the actual scene, however, as Justice Caverly's courtroom is on the sixth floor. So severe were the police plans for preventing any attempt to rush the courtroom that at 9:30 the meager seating space was only half filled. Elevators were being run no higher than the fifth floor and to reach the courtroom it was necessary to climb a flight of stairs and then pass a long gauntlet of policemen and bailiffs. A balliff, swilling under the importance of the occasion and sweating in an unaccustomed but magnificent blue coat, bustled about the room telling people to sit down, telling them to stand up, telling them that they must move or that they must not.

The courtroom is on the south-west corner of the building, so that windows on two sides flooded its golden oak benches, railings and desks. A semicircular railing fenced off the front half occupied by the judge's bench, the witness stand, the jury box, the lawyers' table and chairs and the several press tables. The judge sat at the center of the north side of the room. Over to his left, against the east wall, is the jury box, and just at his left is the witness stand facing the stenographer's desk. The lawyers' table is in front of the jury box. The State's Attorney and his three assistants had the side nearest the jury box, while defense counsel sat opposite.

Pathetic Group of Relatives.

Leopold and Loeb sat at the head of the table, almost directly in front of the judge's desk. In a row of seats just inside the railing on the west side of the inclosure was perhaps the most pathetic group in the courtroom. Next to the gate was Nathan Leopold Sr., a business man, with a certain air of distinction, his face and quivering hands twitching and tears near the surface. Foreman Leopold, his son, a fleshy young man of perhaps 30, struggling likewise to conceal his emotions, was in the next chair. Then came Jacob Loeb, former president of the Board of Education, uncle of Richard, tall and scholarly. And Allen Loeb, Richard's brother. Both of Loeb's parents were reported to be ill as a Northern result.

Jacob Franks, father of the murdered boy, was not in court.

Statement by the Court.

It was precisely 10 o'clock when Justice Caverly, a square man, with a good-humored but forceful Irish countenance and a long curl descending over his broad forehead, emerged in his black robe. One of the features of this case is that both sides are so well satisfied with the judge that either would oppose a change of venue. Lawyers, attendants and spectators rose until the judge was seated, and he immediately began:

"Before asking that the defendants be brought out, the court desires to make a statement. After the lawyers, press and families of the principals are seated, there will be much room for others in the courtroom. When the seats are all taken, no others will be permitted to enter. Nobody will be permitted to stand except the lawyers in the actual trial of the case."

Addressing himself then to the press table, the judge then read from a decision of the Supreme Court, in which a case was reversed, one of the grounds being that the trial judge permitted the courtroom to be used for a picture gallery and the trial "into a show." He warned, although very civilly, that no photographs must be made during the proceedings, except at recess, and no flashlights in any time.

He then announced: "The case of the people against Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard A. Loeb, and the boys were led into court through a rear door in the north-east corner of the room."

Both were newly shaven, and the talem was fresh on their cheeks. The hair of each was smoothly brushed. Nathan was smiling. Loeb, who followed him, also smiled, and spoke to a newspaper man. They apparently did not notice their relatives, seated a few feet away.

The lawyers immediately formed a thick group in front of the judge's desk, and began to speak. His voice was so low, and so thick was the massing of attorneys and bailiffs around him, that it was impossible, almost, to hear all that he said. His opening sentence, however, did not seem to indicate what he was leading up to. It was not until he reached the point of saying:

"Counsel for the defense in this case has duty to its clients, to the public and to the public. In our effort to discharge that duty, we desire at this time to withdraw our plea of not guilty and to enter a plea of guilty."

The sentence went through the room like an electric shock. Lawyers stiffened, reporters sprang up wide-eyed, and sped to telephones. The entire courtroom was galvanic. Rumors of an impending surprise had been numerous, but apparently nobody had expected a plea of guilty. From a scene of slight anticipation verging closely upon indifference, the drama leaped starkly, to a dizzy pitch of intensity. The few who seemed calm were the veteran Darrow, continuing his statement in low, measured tones; the keen, perfectly poised Judge; and the defendants. Leopold glanced around with a twinkle in his eye, as if enjoying the surprise.

Duty to Clients and Public.

Darrow had stated that in offering the plea of guilty counsel was trying to do its conscientious duty by its clients, their families and the public. "We regret to throw this burden on the shoulders of the Court," he said, referring to the responsibility of determining the punishment, which, in consequence of the plea, had now passed solely to the Judge. "But we know that the Court is capable of bearing it, and that the Court has no desire to shirk its responsibility to the public."

"The only consideration that we desire is the opportunity of offering some evidence in mitigation of the sentence, touching the mental responsibility of the defendants at the time this crime was committed."

Judge Caverly then asked both sides if they would be ready for the taking of this testimony Wednesday and Darrow and Crowe each said they were ready now. The judge fixed that day. The practical effect of this is to move the beginning of the trial up from Aug. 4 to Wednesday.

Statement by Backrach.

Benjamin Backrach of defense counsel, in supporting Darrow's action said: "In trying to do our duty to our clients and the public we have come in contact with many men of science, who have been asked to investigate the mental condition of the defendants."

"These men have some ideals and some sense of professional ethics. They tell us that other criminal trials in which insanity has been offered as a defense have amounted practically to vaudeville shows and have required in bringing a great deal of public contempt, both upon the law and upon their profession."

"They desire to avoid that in this case and to that end have offered to enter into a joint conference with the attorneys for the State in which they may present their various views, and try to agree upon the degree of mental responsibility of these defendants."

"What does this mean?" State's Attorney Crowe broke in. "Have we got a plea of guilty here from two sane men or two insane men? If there is to be any contention here that these men are insane, we will ask the court to call a jury to decide the case."

"I wish the State's Attorney would let me proceed without interruption," Backrach protested. "We are trying to be conscientious about this thing, and we are acting in good faith toward the court and the State's Attorney. I think this sort of an interruption comes with bad grace from the State's Attorney."

"We merely want to avoid the spectacle usually afforded by criminal trials in which insanity is the defense."

"We want to arrive at the actual facts in the case in a manner that is as open dignified and effective. We ask that the State's Attorney join us in that high-class attitude."

To Permit Great Latitude.

"You realize that the Court has no power to compel the State's Attorney to accept the proposal," replied Judge Caverly. Crowe remained adamant. He made it out a simple proposition. The defendants had pleaded guilty. Let them take their punishment. If they desired in any way to cloud or mitigate that plea, he stood ready to prove them guilty before a jury. He made it perfectly clear that he wanted two hangings in his case, and would fight bitterly any attempt to deny them. The judge completed stating the arrangements for the taking of testimony Wednesday and subsequently ascertained both sides that he would allow them the unexpected advancement of the date, due to the plea of guilty. At 10:30 court was adjourned.

During the discussion between Backrach and Crowe, Leopold and Loeb had resumed their seats, both listening with deep interest to the discussion but betraying no particular emotions when Crowe declared and reiterated his demands for their lives. As the court adjourned they made for the entrance, scrambling through the hallways, the fact that they were so busy that efforts to find out how they regarded the changed situation, regarding the plea of guilty, were fruitless. It was generally conceded, however, that on the ground of mitigation the punishment was safely and permanently excluded from the public. Of course, after that is done, we do want to do the best we can for them, within these limits.

Withdraws Not Guilty Plea.

"After long reflection and thorough discussion, so long as that is the only issue in the case, we have determined to make a motion in this court for the withdrawal of our plea of not guilty and to enter a plea of guilty. Your honor, we dislike to throw this burden upon this court, or any court. We know its seriousness and its gravity, but a court can no more shirk responsibility than attorney, and, while we wish it could be otherwise, we feel that it must be as we have chosen."

The statute provides that evidence may be offered in mitigation of the punishment, and we shall ask at such time as the Court may direct that we may be permitted to offer evidence as to the mental condition of these young men, to show the degree of responsibility they had, and also to offer evidence as to the youth of these defendants, and the fact of a plea of guilty as further mitigation of the penalty in this case.

"With that we throw ourselves

upon the mercy of this Court, this Court alone."

"Does that go for both defendants?" inquired State's Attorney Crowe, referring to the separate dictaments for murder and kidnapping. "For both of them," replied the row.

Defendants Light-Heartedly Turn to Their Cells.

The defendants returned to their cells in the county jail, and talking light heartedly, apparently carefully, refrained from all discussion of the case. They made light of the situation that they had been through during the proceedings, and admitted they were "glad the day" was over.

"They manifested great interest in what the newspapers were saying and pressed their guards for editions."

"The proclamation of an insanity plea is a six-inch headline," the building's press agent said. "Ask us about anything and we'll tell you," Loeb said later in the morning.

Then the pair turned to reporters with an avalanche of questions about the details of the trial.

"I'll bet we're all over the papers," Loeb said. Then he impatiently: "I wish they'd stop the papers up."

Several times before the day was over, Loeb had been abruptly commanded by his companion to "shut up."

Statement by Franks.

State's Attorney Crowe, in a statement issued after the proceedings that he would "ask the extreme penalty" for both defendants.

The statement followed:

"There was nothing left for Loeb and Leopold to do but plead guilty. The proof was so overwhelming that no jury could return any verdict except one of guilty."

"The time was so costly and premeditated and atrocious that jury could fix any other punishment except death. There is no other proper punishment. The death penalty as to both of them is the only one."

Allegation testimony is expected to play a big part in the hearing which starts Wednesday. Backrach retained for the defense are Karl M. Bowman, Dr. William H. White, Dr. E. S. Hulbert, Dr. Edward Gibson, Dr. Paul G. Ross, Dr. William J. Hickson, Dr. E. S. Hamill and Dr. Sanger Brown. The attorneys retained for the State are Drs. Hugh T. Palmer, W. H. White, Dr. E. S. Attended Church on Sunday and Complimented Minister on Sermon—Rest of Day Spent Quietly.

DARK HARBOR, N.Y., July 21.—John W. Davis began work here today on the speech of acceptance he will deliver when formally notified that he is the Democratic candidate for the presidency.

He spent Sunday quietly, after accompanying his wife to morning service at Christ Episcopal Church. The sermon was by Dr. B. A. Partridge, rector of Greek at College Park (Calist.). The clergyman said in his sermon:

"We hear a great deal about reconstruction and the problems because of us, but I am convinced that the only reconstruction which will be real is that which is planned by men working with sanctified and consecrated common sense, trying to make the golden rule of Christ not merely a rule for the individual but the community at large."

"While you build up your body, health by the change which these surroundings give you, and which renew your mental and intellectual activity and power, you should not neglect the strengthening of your spiritual life."

Davis enjoyed the sermon. The collection plate was passed by Frank L. Polk, who accompanied Davis to Dark Harbor to spend his own family, which is spending the season here as usual. Polk is one of the trustees of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York.

He enjoyed the sermon very much. Davis told the preacher after the service, "and was particularly impressed by what you said of the peace and quiet in this island."

A mass of data on foreign and domestic problems which was gathered at New York was taken to the Gibson home by secretaries, and Davis will digest this before starting to map the address out. He has already had several different phases of the subject matter with party leaders.

He expects to have his speech outlined in memorandum form when he leaves early next week for the New York. Upon his arrival he will put it in finished shape.

A mass of data on foreign and his mind. He already has dis-

He expects to have his speech

there he will put it in finished shape.

His friends predict a vigorous handling of the major problems of the day, including foreign affairs and farm relief as well as other domestic questions. Honesty in government, they believe, will be a prominent subject.

LOEB AND LEOPOLD PLEAD GUILTY OF FRANK'S MURDER

William Singer.

At any time in the hearing
Judge Caverly decides there is a possibility that Leopold and Loeb
may enter a court hearing for a "sanity hearing" by jury.

If the jury decides that the boys are sane, then Judge Caverly will conduct a sanity hearing, then their attorneys may ask for a new hearing. If the jury finds them insane, that incarceration for life will be ordered.

A further possibility is in sight,
however. If the Judge sentences
the boys to death, either with or without a sanity hearing, then their
attorneys may ask for a new hearing on the ground that insanity
exists to the boys after judgment.
In that case, Leopold and Loeb, after the hearing and after sentence,
may have been insane for the last time.

Today afternoon Sheriff Hoffman announced that extra guards
have been assigned to the cells of the boys to preclude an attempt at escape.

Extra guards will be stationed

by a man on a motor cycle and forced to halt. The crowd quickly came up to the carriage and it is alleged that some of the soldiers also interfered to prevent the Americans' escape.

Beaten in Hospital.
Vice Consul Imbrie was dragged out on one side of the carriage by the mob and Seymour on the other. Imbrie valiantly defended himself with his cane until he was struck on the head by a military sword. He attempted to rise, but was knocked down again by a stone which broke his jaw. Meanwhile Seymour was struck from all sides and dragged into the Cossack parade ground.

A detachment of police finally succeeded in getting both the injured men into an automobile and took them to the police hospital.
The crowd followed and broke into the building, smashing doors and windows and committed further acts of violence. Imbrie, who died at 2 o'clock that afternoon.

There was still hope today of saving Seymour's life.

Assassins Will Be Executed at Scene of Crime, Says Consul.

By the Associated Press.
MORRISTOWN, N. J., July 21.—
No mercy will be shown those responsible for the fatal beating of Vice Consul Imbrie by a fanatical mob at Teheran, Persia,
H. H. Topakyan, acting Consul General of the Persian Government in the United States, said today at his summer home near Morris Plain.

"They will be promptly executed
at the place of their crime and the execution may be witnessed by the American Minister and his staff,"
the Persian representative added.

Topakyan declared arrests have already been made in the case and trial by court-martial will take place immediately.

"It was most unfortunate that Vice Consul Imbrie was wearing a Persian cap at the time he approached the fountain," he continued, explaining that the "mob undoubtedly took him for a member of a sect or religious order, now creating a great deal of feeling against the Mohammedans."

Describing the case as a horrible tragedy, Topakyan expressed sorrow for what has occurred and I am more deeply distressed for the reason that the relations between the United States and Persia have been most friendly for more than a century."

"I can assure your people," the envoy said, "that the people of my country extend their sympathy and that everything possible will be done to offer redress and give the United States complete satisfaction."

Protection for American Bahais in Persia Sought.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 21.—A telegram asking for protection of American members in Persia of the Bahais was sent last night to the office of the Secretary of State
by Mountfort Mills, president of the American Society of the Ba-hais. The telegram was the result of the death at Teheran, Persia, of

Vice Consul Imbrie, who was killed in an assault thought to have been upon the Bahais.

Mills said the Bahais who work
for a universal religion and equality of women are disliked in Persia.
His telegram follows:

"In addition to their feeling of horror and indignation at the bat-tal murder of Vice Consul Imbrie
by a mob at Teheran in the course of a fanatical demonstration against the Bahais there, the Ba-hais of this country feel deep concern for the safety of their fellows in Teheran, particularly of the American women in charge of the Tarbiat School for Girls. In behalf of Bahais in the United States we beg to urge that the utmost effort to protect them be made without delay."

with several of the delegates whom he entertained at luncheon at

were discussed.

A subcommittee encountered an obstacle in the Franco-Belgian claim to be allowed to maintain some form of communication between the Ruhr and the Rhineland, and France and Belgium. It failed to agree.

The French want to dilute the German railway personnel with a number of French and Belgian rail-waymen and thus assure themselves that the railways will be more or less under French supervision in case of a strike of the German workers or in other emergencies.

The British insist on a return to the old arrangement regarding the railways. This was in force for the occupied part of the Rhineland before the Ruhr occupation. By it power was conferred on the inter-allied railway commission to utilize troops in case of a strike or other difficulties.

MAN KILLED WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS ON ILLINOIS ROAD

Steamfitter Suffers Broken

Machine.

Walter Green, 32 years old, a steamfitter, of 1316 North Fif-killed early yesterday morning

when an automobile in which he was riding overturned on the East St. Louis-Collinsville road about two miles northeast of East St.
Louis. His neck was broken.

Green, with George Hoskins, 35,
of 1117 North Fifteenth street, East St. Louis, was returning from a roadhouse, when at the point of the accident. Hoskins averted the machine suddenly to avoid an approaching car, the road being partly blocked by a third automobile with a punctured tire. Hoskins suffered cuts about the head and face when the machine went over.

As occupants of the other cars were bathing Green's head, not re-realizing his neck was broken, a speeding Stutz car crashed into the overturned machine, jamming it back against a telephone pole.

Miss Opal Graham, 20, of East St.
Louis, who had been in one of the other machines, was pinned between the car and the pole and her right arm fractured. Two men jumped from the Stutz, later found to have been stolen earlier in the evening from Oliver Boesby, 1421
North Grand boulevard, St. Louis, and escaped by getting in another car that was following.

Green, who was pronounced dead
when taken to St. Mary's Hospital, was a brother of Deputy Coroner Lafayette Green of St. Clair County. A widow, two sisters and another brother, survive.

Injuries Fatal to Man Struck by Auto.

Ferdinand Hagnes, 70 years old,
a retired railroad man, of 7048
Tholozan avenue, died at city hospital at 6:35 p. m. yesterday from a fractured skull suffered Saturday, when knocked down in front of 7020 Manchester avenue by an automobile driven by George W.
Kerwin, 39, of 602 Wagner place, Luxemburg.

Hagnes was crossing from the north to the south side of the street, and was within a few feet
of the south curb when struck.
Kerwin said he had just passed an eastbound Manchester car when Hagnes stepped in the path of his machine. He asserted, but the automobile skidded on the wet pavement, and the right rear fender felled Hagnes.

Negro Does From Injuries Suffered July 6.

Joseph Massey, a negro, 54 years old, of Kirkwood, died at City Hospital No. 2 yesterday from a fractured skull and internal injuries suffered July 6, when struck on Manchester road, near Manchester, Mo., by a Ford sedan, the driver of which sped away after the accident. Massey had left his automobile in the rear of the road picking up his hat, which had blown off, when he was struck.

WOMAN SLAIN AT ROADHOUSE BY SHOT FROM AUTO

Frances Scott Dies in Hospital After Being Wounded at Place Near East St. Louis.

A woman known as Frances Scott, 29 years old, who has been living with Mrs. Dula Vollmer at 622 North Seventy-second street, St.
Clair County, near the East St.
Louis city limits, died at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis, at 5:30
a. m. today, from a bullet wound
inflicted at 1:30 a. m. at Dale Stamper's roadhouse on Le Page
boulevard, north of Lake Drive.

Deputy Sheriffs and policemen who investigated were told that Frances Scott, and the Vollmer woman were standing in front of the roadhouse when a Nash touring car with three men in it approached from Lake Drive and a man in the rear seat fired one shot, which struck Miss Scott near the heart.

Park Policemen Frank Madden
and Walter Vincent, on station at the tourist camp on Lake Drive,
were told that a woman had been shot at Stamper's and went there.
An ambulance arrived at about the same time. Madden rode with the woman in the ambulance, hoping to get a statement from her. Vincent, following on his motor cycle, saw a Nash car come out of a drive near the canal bridge and speed after the ambulance. He came alongside and called upon the occupants to stop. For answer they opened fire. He dropped back and fired three shots at the machine. It sped up and escaped.
It bore a Missouri license.

Madden questioned the woman
one night last week when she came along Lake Drive in a Ford,
which she was driving uncertainly.
She had been drinking, he says,
and told him the car, bearing a Missouri license, had been given to her by a suitor, whose name, she said, was Eddie.

When Deputy Sheriffs reached the roadhouse they found Stamper
and three other men and three women there. They were arrested and taken to Belleville. Mrs. Vollmer had gone with the girl to the hospital and was not arrested.
Stamper said he was not there at the time of the shooting.

The girl said she did not know who shot her and clung to that statement even after she was told that she was going to die. She had lived in the vicinity of the roadhouse only a short time. Before that she was in St. Louis and Benton, Ill. Her home is said to be in Pennsylvania. She is said to be Polish and it is conjectured that Scott is not her real name.

Authorities are unconvinced as to the circumstances of the shooting and not clear as to the motive.
They think it may have occurred,
as claimed, in front of the place
or in the house, and that the motive may have been jealousy, or that the shooting may have been in a row in the saloon, although there were no indications of a fight in the place when the Deputy Sheriffs arrived. They found in weeds back of the house, however, five gallons of moonshine whisky.

PRIEST WHO CARED FOR POOR IS DEAD

THE REV. JOHN ROBINSON.

front of 2931 Chouteau avenue, St.
Louis, in a Ford touring car, two youths, who said they were Earl Carter, 19, of 1121 Gaty avenue,
East St. Louis, and James H. Paul,
19, of 3210 Park avenue, St. Louis.
Carter had blood on his shirt
and there was blood on the rear seat of the machine. They said they had been in an accident at East St. Louis, but their answers were evasive and conflicting, so they were locked up. The license on the automobile was found to have been issued to Mrs. Bud Carter, 1121 Gaty avenue.

Tell of Being at Roadhouse.

Carter and Paul later said they
and a third youth drove up to Stamper's place shortly after the shooting and at the request of somebody turned back and found the park policeman. Returning to Stamper's, it was suggested that the wounded woman be made more comfortable, so a cushion was taken from his car and one from another and placed under her.

When she had been taken away he picked up one of the cushions and placed it in his car. By mistake he took the wrong one. It was bloodstained. The blood on his shirt, he said, came from handling the cushion and helping with the wounded woman.

St. Louis officials accepted their statement as true, but will not release them until they have heard further from the St. Clair County officials.

FATHER ROBINSON DIES IN IRELAND

Priest Noted for His Charitable Work Here Expires in His Old Home.

The Rev. Father John Robinson,
"docean junkman" of St. Louis,
who for more than 10 years cared for tuberculosis sufferers through funds obtained by collecting newspapers, magazines and rags, is dead
at his old home in County Westmeath, Ireland, according to letters
that have reached friends in St.
Louis. He was nearly 75 years old.

Father Robinson's "White Cross crusade" is still being carried on,
and has come under the supervision of Mr. Timothy Dempsey, head of several other charities.

To the general public, and to housewives in many parts of the city, the familiar part of Father Robinson's work was the motor truck which made visits to parishes
and neighborhoods, at stated times,
to collect the accumulations of paper and rags. A loud horn gave notice of the truck's approach.

Rode With Driver.

Father Robinson, big and genial,
frequently rode with the driver,
and he would go into basements or kitchens with the driver and help to gather up the papers, throwing them into sacks.

The part which the public did not see was the care of the tuberculosis patients, which was for the most part in connection with Mount St. Rose Hospital, on South
Broadway beyond the city limits.

There, through the proceeds of the sale of the waste collected by Father Robinson from housewives, groups of children, from the poorer districts, sufferers from tubercular diseases, were housed and treated. In some cases, diet and care have restored the children to health. Treatment has also been given to adults at Mount St.
Rose's through the help of the White Cross funds, but as a rule
the children have come first.

The Rev. Father J. T. Coffey of St. Leo's Church said today that the work had begun when Father Robinson was stationed there, as one of his assistants.

Gives Whole Time to Work.

In his work in this parish,
Father Coffey said, Father Robinson would find persons suffering
from tuberculosis, who needed care,
and who, remaining at home,
might be a source of danger to others. He got a few such persons into Mt. St. Rose, and as a means of providing for them, he collected such funds as he could get, and began soliciting gifts of waste paper.

This enterprise grew rapidly, until he decided to give his whole time to it. He continued this work until age caused him to retire, and he went to the home of his brother,
who is a considerable land owner
in Ireland. His death, from what he had, came rather unexpectedly.

The headquarters of the White Cross Crusade are at 3525 Cosens avenue. A board, named by Archbishop Glennon, has had supervision of the finances of the work.

RESTAURANT MAN KILLED BY ROBBER

Peter Sotiropoulos Shot Three Times By Negro in Attempted Holdup.

Peter Sotiropoulos, 39 years old,
proprietor of a restaurant at 1931 Market street, died at 10 a. m. today at city hospital of bullet wounds received at 11:40 o'clock
last night, when he resisted the attempt of a negro to hold him up on Twentieth street between Pine and Chestnut.

Sotiropoulos told the police,
through his brother as interpreter,
that he left his brother, Mike, in charge of the restaurant and started to his home at 1616 North Twentieth street. As he was walking past the mouth of an alley between Pine and Chestnut, he said, a negro with a revolver appeared and ordered him to throw up his hands. When he attempted to grapple with the robber the negro shot him three times and fled.

He then started back to the restaurant, he said, but collapsed on the sidewalk in front, where he was found by his brother and Sam Fryman, 4732 Vernon avenue, proprietor of a restaurant at 2602
Market street. They took him in a taxicab to city hospital. He was wounded in the abdomen and chest.

His watch and $5.50 were found on his person, but a .32-caliber revolver, which Sotiropoulos ordinarily carried for self protection,
and which he was known to have had when he left the restaurant
last night, was missing.

Police went over the route described by Sotiropoulos, but found no clues between Pine and Chestnut, where he said he was shot.
At the mouth of an alley between Pine and Olive, however, they found the wounded man's coat
and straw hat and in a shed 20 feet west of Twentieth street, in the alley, came upon a yellow sweater with blue collar which they believe may have been dropped by the assailant. Negroes living in the vicinity who were questioned said that about 11 o'clock they heard a man cry out

FUNERALS OF TWO SLAYERS EXECUTED FRIDAY, HELD

Services for Hugh Pinkley and Charles Merrell, conducted by Catholic Priests.

The funerals of Hugh Pinkley and Charles Merrell were held today, conducted by the two Catholic priests who accompanied them to the scene of their execution in the city jail, Friday afternoon.

Pinkley's funeral was held in St. Mary's Church, East St. Louis, where his body was taken from the home of his sister, Mrs. Anna Eamon, 308 Exchange Avenue. About 100 persons were at the church, and there were several floral pieces sent by friends and relatives. A few automobiles followed the hearse to Mount Carmel Cemetery. The Rev. Father J. A. Regan made a short talk at the church. He said Pinkley died in the Catholic faith, and went to his death without fear.

He made a similar talk later at the funeral of Merrell, held in St. Francis Xavier's Church. The Rev. Father J. A. de Villbias assisted in both funerals. No mention was made, in either instance, of the crime of which the men were convicted, the murder of one of the two policemen killed by them in the course of an attempted payroll robbery.

Several hundred persons attended Merrell's funeral. Most of them, it appeared, were unacquainted with Merrell, as only a few automobiles went to Calvary Cemetery. Verne Lacy, who was Merrell's lawyer, and some of Lacy's professional associates, with two personal friends of Merrell, were pallbearers. One of those who served at Lacy's request was Joseph Linder, a lawyer, who was formerly head of the police homicide squad.

Needle Removed From Girl's Throat.
An embroidery needle was removed from the throat of Dorothy Edster, 14 years old, of 2815 La Salle street, by a surgeon at city hospital yesterday afternoon. She had swallowed it accidentally. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Edster.

WALSH RESIGNS AS HEAD OF CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE

Massachusetts Senator Signs Aside, in Accordance With Precedent—Jones His Successor.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, resigned today as chairman of the Democratic Senatorial campaign committee and was succeeded by Senator Jones of New Mexico. "In accordance with precedent I am relinquishing my duties as chairman of the Senatorial Committee," Walsh said, "as it is the practice for a Senator to serve in this capacity for only one Congressional election."

"The chief function of the committee is to keep in touch with and render assistance to Democratic Senatorial candidates. Senator Jones is not a candidate for reelection this year and is in position to give considerable time and attention to the campaign. He can be relied upon to make an active and successful campaign."

MUST LAW ISSUE IN GRAIN MERGER

Dispatch Bureau,
34-35 Wyat Building,
WASHINGTON, July 21.—Ech-

oivings of several farm spokesmen over the proposed grain merger, proposed by Benjamin C. Marsh, director of the Farmers' National Union, enumerated today six on which his association declination before approving the enterprise.

Marsh said he had written letter to Attorney-General Stone not violate antitrust laws.

also seeking enlightenment
this line from the Department of Agriculture.

Marsh's judgment should not be based on this proposal of the merger of wheat growers to become "brother" and tutor in the business of selling wheat," said

Marsh, "but the following questions in connection with the present themselves:

Are the grain companies in merger in serious financial trouble and trying to unload?

Is the Chicago Board of Trade, which approved the Government Marketing Corporation bill in 1935, using this method to fool
farmers—trying to wean them
from a marketing corporation?

If the farmer has not had experience in marketing,"

Marsh will the farmer have on board of directors representing farmers, grain dealers, bankers and railroads?

Is this an effort of the grain trusts to get under the umbrage of approximate immunity from the antitrust law as a cooperative?

As it took the United States
Grain Growers, Inc., nearly a year and lost more than $400,000 of stock in the process, which died before any business, how many developers will it take to raise the $25-$30,000 of stock from the farmers in the worst financial condition in their history.

Marsh in 1917 J. Orin Archer owned 84 per cent and other members of his family owned 23.9

per cent of the stock of the Archer Grain Co., one of the five grain companies involved, and when the company's assets were sold in 1920, Marsh received 80 per cent of the proceeds, Marsh said.

Marsh said he was one, from the grain directly or through their attorneys, directors, agents or servants, this is a clear violation of the Federal Reserve Act. Marsh said he would not consent to any merger unless the consent of the farmers is obtained.

These are some of the questions to which careful consideration should be given before farmers embark upon what seems to be a very questionable undertaking, Marsh said.

Marsh said the financial octopus of the nation.

ADVICE FOR NICARAGUA

Refuse to Go Beyond Treaty
as to Presidency.

WASHINGTON, July 21.—The United States again has served notice that its only concern about the election of Presidents in Central America is that no revolutionary leader be chosen—a policy

based on the treaty of amity relating to the United States.

The Foreign Minister had asked the attitude of the United States toward a ticket made up of Solezcano, conservative, for presidency and Juan Batista Rivera, for the vice-presidency, agreed upon by some leaders of the two parties.

Refusing to go beyond the treaty declaration, the American minister said that "the transference
of the center of political activity
from Washington to Nicaragua
would be detrimental to that Government's interests, and this Government therefore cannot express its regarding any ticket."

FLAGSHIP OFF TO KEEP WATCH FOR U.S. FLYERS

Admiral Magruder Sails From Newport On the Richmond—Destroyers to Follow.

"WHALE OF A WELCOME HOME" PLANNED FOR AIRMEN AT BOSTON

By the Associated Press.
BOSTON, July 21.—THE return to the United States of the world-circling flyers, who are to complete the crossing of the Atlantic at this port, probably about Aug. 21, will be marked by a "whale of a welcome home," Capt. Louis R. Knight, air service officer for New England, said today.

"Besides a military and naval demonstration," he said, "there will be an aerial circus. We will send three squadrons of 15 planes, each up the coast of Maine, to escort Lieut. Smith and his associates to Boston. The chief of the air service, Gen. Mason M. Patrick, and the assistant chief, William J. Mitchell, as well as other officials from Washington, will fly here to extend the welcome."

By the Associated Press.
NEWPORT, R. I., July 21.—The navy today began its task of keeping watch below while the army world flyers soar over the Atlantic on the homeward leg of their journey. The cruiser Richmond, flagship of Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, commanding the light cruiser squadron, slipped out of this port today, the advance guard of about a dozen naval vessels which will be stationed along the route of the aviators from England to Scotland and thence by way of the Orkney Islands, Iceland and Greenland to the North American continent on the bleak coast of Labrador and onward across Newfoundland and Nova Scotia to Boston.

The destroyer flotilla now at Newport will depart some time this week to assist in the work. The Richmond will be joined in British waters by the cruiser Raleigh and two destroyers from the European squadron, and the four warships will guard the flight from England to the Orkneys and thence to Iceland. The Milwaukee, now at Halifax, will distribute supplies to the various points where the flyers are scheduled to stop. The destroyers will be strung out along the leg from Greenland to Labrador.

By this method the Navy Department hopes to be in continuous touch by radio with the men who are making history in the air. The installation in England of sending and receiving apparatus on the flagships will enable Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, the flight commander, to communicate at all times with Admiral Magruder on the Richmond or with others of the war craft along the line.

If the latest schedule drawn up for the homing planes is carried out they will drop into the more or less sheltered waters of Indian Bay, Labrador, on Aug. 17. Four days later they should reach Pictou, N. S., and after a brief stop proceed to Boston and thence down the coast to Washington and across the continent to complete their flight at its starting point in California.

36 GRAIN COMPANIES OFFER TO SELL OUT TO FARM BUREAU

Thousand Country Elevators and 24 Terminals in Minneapolis and Duluth Included.
By the Associated Press.
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., July 21.—Thirty-six grain companies of the Northwest today offered to sell their entire holdings, including 1922 country elevators in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, to the American Farm Bureau Federation.

These holdings also include 22 terminal elevators in Minneapolis and 12 in Duluth, with a total elevator capacity approximating 65,000,000 bushels, according to the grain companies' announcement.

The offer was made in a letter to O. E. Bruffa, president of the federation and one of the leaders in the new grain-handling company recently incorporated in Illinois to take over five of the largest grain firms in Chicago.

RECEIVER FOR OIL COMPANY

S. E. Stevens to Take Charge of the Dix Products Concern.
Stanley E. Stevens, an attorney, was appointed today as receiver for the Dix Oil Products Co. of 230 South Vandeventer avenue, following a hearing before Circuit Judge Frey of the petition of four minority stockholders.

The petitioners charged the company was being mismanaged by Thomas Q. Dix, president of the company, and his son, Chester. They charged that Dix ran the concern as a private enterprise and refused the stockholders any voice in its management. Further, they charged that he issued to himself a large block of stock because of supposed "minority work" he had done with a company which was absorbed when the Dix company was organized. The company has an authorized capital of $50,000, and manufactures lubricants.

Hotel Men Demand Liquor Charge.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 21.—Duncan Harris, president of the Hotel-Carillon Hotel Co., Vice President Errol Kerr, and Treasurer John Watts, charged with maintaining a public nuisance through violations of the Volstead act, pleaded not guilty in Federal Court here today. Trial was set for July 28 and bail was continued at $1000 each. Counsel for the three officials said, his clients had not violated the dry laws but rather had warned the hotel's waiters not to sell liquor.

R. I. OFFICIALS SEIZED BY BAY STATE POLICE
Governor Flynn Says He Will Go Limit to Investigate Arrests.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 21.—Asserting he would use every means in his power to find out why Massachusetts authorities interfered with Rhode Island authorities in the investigation of a crime committed in Rhode Island, Gov. Flynn today declared he intended to go the limit in his investigation. He will ascertain, he said, why two Assistant Attorneys-General, two members of the Providence Police Department and two men traveling with them were arrested late Saturday night by Massachusetts State police in Holden, Mass., and later booked as suspicious persons at Worcester police headquarters.

Assistant Attorney-General George Hurley and John P. Hartigan, Inspector John J. Maguire and Louis F. Godfrey of the Providence Police and Thomas Lally and Matthew McGovern, the two men who last week furnished the Governor with affidavits regarding the placing of a gas bomb in the Rhode Island Senate chamber, June 19, were the persons arrested in Holden. They were taken from there to Worcester police headquarters and, after being held nearly four hours, were booked as suspicious persons. Later they were admitted to bail of $300 each, furnished by Charles Campbell, a Worcester attorney, and returned to this city early yesterday.

Denied Hotel Register.
The party had left here Saturday afternoon to go to Rutland, Mass., where the Republican State Senators have been in session since the gas bomb incident, more than a month ago.

Arriving at Hotel Bartlett, where the Republicans are staying, Hurley asked the management to permit him to look over the register. A delay of an hour followed, in which Hurley said the manager of the hotel refused steadfastly to grant his request.

About 10 o'clock the party left to return to Rhode Island. Passing through Holden, the first town from Rutland, their automobile was stopped by a squad of State police. A Sergeant inquired as to the party's business in that section and Hurley said, in spite of the fact that the Providence police inspectors showed him their credentials, the Sergeant detained the group, taking them to State police headquarters in Paxton.

Republican Leader Accused.
The occurrence is another in a chain of startling developments which have characterized the political warfare in this State.

It reached its culmination a month ago, when, at the end of a continuous session of more than 50 hours, a bromine bomb was planted in the Senate chamber, near the seat of Lieutenant-Governor Felix A. Tobin.

Immediately thereafter the Republican majority, 22 in number, fled the State to Rutland, Mass., where they have remained.

Lally and McGovern, alleged members of Boston's underworld, have furnished Gov. Flynn with affidavits charging that the bomb was planted by one of their group at the behest of William C. Pelkey, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee.

ASSASSINS IN AUTO KILL MAN WALKING NEAR HIS HOME

James Denna, United Railways Employee, Fired On With Automatic Pistols and Pump Shotgun.

THEORY: BOOTLEGG FEUD CAUSED CRIME

Police Say Modest Prosperity of Victim Might Have Sufficed to Bring on Punishment.

Assassins in an automobile killed James Denna, 33 years old, of 4212 North Eleventh street, in front of a neighbor's home at No. 4218, at 5:15 a. m. today.

Denna, a United Railways track laborer, lived with his wife and three children in a stucco bungalow, which he was buying on installments. A large garden, cultivated by Denna and his wife, helped to supply the family needs. If there was another means of supplementing his income—and the police believe there may have been—it had not brought Denna into conflict with the authorities.

The killing, the police say, had the marks of a bootleggers' crime. An automobile drove up to Denna as he walked toward his home and men in the car began firing automatic pistols and a pump shotgun at him.

10 or 11 Shots Fired. Denna, at the moment, was carrying a long board. He had taken several such boards from a quarry, or dump, north of his home. He used the boards, neighbors said, for repair work about his house. Some of the shots entered the board, others marred the wall of an adjoining house. A large wound in Denna's right side, surrounded by smaller wounds, caused death, and it was not until the first examination, whether the wound represented more than one shot from a shotgun. Ten or 11 shots were fired, it appears.

Denna was unconscious when John Teolio, who lives at 4218, ran out in a nightgown and trousers, having heard the shots. Teolio said afterward that when he saw a black touring car departing it was nearly a block south of the scene. He ran a few feet in that direction, and then to the neighbors to "get the number," but no one did. A boy told the police that the car was a Buick.

It was noticed that the car was either new or brightly polished.

Wife Is Mysteried. Mrs. Denna said, and neighbors said also, that Denna had not a part in any feud or other trouble, and she could offer no explanation for the murder. Teolio was held at the Angelica Street Station as a witness.

The Denna children are Francis, 16, Anne, 8, and John, 4 months. The family had lived in the Eleventh street neighborhood about three years.

The police say that even the modest prosperity shown in the partial acquisition of the small home might have sufficed to bring the punishments of a bootleggers' feud upon Denna, if he had ever had any connection with bootlegging enterprises.

Seeks Aid in Finding Son.

Louis Hoffman, a mail carrier of 4244 Osceola street, and his wife, Mrs. Amelia Hoffman, have appealed to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch to help them find their son, Robert, 15 years old, who disappeared from his home last Thursday, leaving a note saying that he was "going away" and that his parents need not try to find him. He was last heard of in Hermann, Mo., from which point he mailed a post card to his parents Saturday. The message told nothing about his plans. The parents said he had exhibited discontent of late because of their disapproval of some of his associates.

FARMER-LABOR PARTY OF STATE FOR FOSTER

La Follette Rejected as Representative
"the Independent Banker."

The La Follette third party movement is attacked as representative of the interests of the independent banker and manufacturer in a statement issued by W. M. Adams, State chairman for Missouri of the Farmer-Labor Party, in which its organization is pledged to the support of the ticket of the Workers' Party of America, nominated at St. Paul in June, and which is headed by William Z. Foster, a widely known communist.

Adams said that the members of the Farmer-Labor party of Missouri hold sacred "the principle of independent working class political action" but are compelled to face the fact that they have not sufficient organization as yet to go through with a campaign for presidential electors this year.

Because in their opinion the action of the convention for progressive political action at Cleveland constitutes "a calculated betrayal of the Farmer-Labor political movement," in that it did not even consider the question of a political party of workers and farmers, they are forced to look elsewhere for the weapon with which to "advance the cause of working class political action," Adams said.

Therefore, Adams concluded, "The Missouri Farmer-Labor party does hereby endorse the national and State tickets of the one party which has consistently and valiantly striven for the realization of a mass party of the wage workers and exploited farmers—the Workers' Party of America."

Candidates for State office in Missouri named so far by the Workers' Party are: For Governor, John M. Hille of Kansas City; for Lieutenant-Governor, Elmer E. McMullen of St. Louis; for Secretary of State, Carl Mink of St. Louis;

for Congress Tenth (St. Louis and St. Louis County) District, John Braun; Eleventh (St. Louis) District, Harry Stelts.

MAN IN HOSPITAL MENAGED Alleged Amalians Held After Climbing Fire Escape.

CHICAGO, July 21.—Charged with entering a hospital room by means of a fire escape and trying to shoot a man confined there, whom he is alleged to have shot a few nights previously, Eugene McLaughlin, known to the police as a gunman, was arrested yesterday. The wounded man, George Wright, superintendent of a taxicab garage, refused to name his assailant after being attacked in the garage.

A man who had twice attempted to gain entrance to Wright's room in the hospital was identified by Wright as McLaughlin. McLaughlin denied any connection with the shooting.

THREE MEMPHIS MURDERS SOLVED BY CONFESSION

Negro, Who Was Arrested After Watch Stolen From Victim Was Pawned, Tells of Crimes.

SAYS ROBBERY WAS THE MOTIVE

In One Case, Man and Woman in Auto Were Slain, in Another Man Was Killed.

Memphis, Tenn., July 21.—Charles Barr, 23, negro, admitted late Saturday night that he was the slayer of Mrs. Ruth McElwain Tucker, 20; Duncan Walter, 19, and W. O. Spencer, 23, victims of Memphis' puzzling roadside murders of 1935.

The confessions came after 56 hours of questioning by Detective Inspector W. T. Griffin, Lieut. Dave Jamison and Sgt. Lee Quinlan, Phelan Thompson and John Long.

Barr said that robbery was the motive in the three murders and denied that he had attacked Mrs. Tucker. Other evidence, however, indicated that she had been attacked.

Jewelry and a .25-caliber automatic pistol were the clues that led to the arrest of Barr.

The first place of evidence was a watch snatched from the arm of Miss Laura Wheaton Johnson, 20, school teacher and companion of Spencer on the night of the murder.

The second was a diamond ring which had been taken from Mrs. Tucker's finger. The automatic pistol, Barr said, had been used to commit both murders.

Ring and Watch Recovered.

Both the ring and watch were recovered by Sgt. Long after they had been pawned by Suoda Barr, 21, the slayer's wife. The negroess said that her husband had given her both articles just after the killing of Spencer.

Since the detectives led him to the point of asking where he got Miss Johnson's wrist watch. Previously he had offered half a dozen explanations, Barr said that he had taken it from a white woman's arm.

Barr then described in detail how he had shot and killed Spencer and dangerously wounded Miss Johnson.

Barr said that on the nights of Jan. 7 and May 23, 1935, he had borrowed an automobile from a friend. The car, he said, he used to stalk his prey. The negro said that it was between midnight and 1 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 7, when he saw Walter and Mrs. Tucker sitting on an embankment near their parked car.

He watched them for several minutes and when they entered the car he said he crept up behind them. Walter was behind the steering wheel and Mrs. Tucker beside him. Barr pulled the gun from his coat pocket and began firing. Walter slumped in the seat. Mrs. Tucker began screaming, according to the negro version, and leaped to the ground. Barr fired one shot at the fleeing woman. He clutched her by the arm as she reeled from a wound in the back of her head and pulled the ring from her finger.

Barr said that Mrs. Tucker jerked loose, ran forward a few steps and then fell. He denied that he had rifled Walter's pocket or had taken $50 in currency.

Story of Third Murder.

His version of the slaying of Spencer on May 23 was as follows: He saw a darkened car on Highland avenue, about 100 yards south of the railroad tracks. He figured that "it was a good job," he said.

Spencer and Miss Johnson heard him as he walked stealthily over to the gravel road. Barr said he fired once through a glass window in the coupe to silence them. Spencer was quiet "after that." Miss Johnson continued screaming as he walked to the door of the car and ordered her to put up her hands. Spencer shifted slightly and Barr fired three shots and killed Spencer. He claimed that he had not intended to hurt the woman.

Barr said that he ran his hands quickly through the dead man's pockets. He took about $5 in change, and the watch which eventually resulted in his arrest. Barr said, he snatched from Miss Johnson's wrist as she half stepped, half fell from the car.

Barr related his flight along a lonely road as Miss Johnson hurried to the home of Fritz Faehrmann, a few hundred yards distant. He claimed that he did not know he had wounded her until he read it in newspapers on the following day.

Miss Johnson's wrist watch was pawned last Thursday by Barr's wife. Detective Sergeant Long recovered it, arrested the woman and thus opened the avenue to the solution of the crimes. The woman told Inspector Griffin that her husband had given her the watch to her about a year ago.

JAPANESE SHIP LOST WITH 57 LIVES

Typhoon Sinks Old Freighter
South of Korea—One Fireman Saved.

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, July 21.—Fifty-seven persons were drowned when the Nippon Yusen Kaisha freighter Matsuyama Maru foundered off Goto Island near Kyushu July 11, according to a report received here today from the Kobe office of the company.

The freighter was an old vessel without radio and carried no passengers. The last port made by the vessel was Keelung, Formosa, from which it sailed for Yokohama July 9.

The ship carried down with her all her officers and crew except one fireman, who was picked up by a trawler and brought to Kobe.

Her owners had had vessels searching for her for several days along her regular route between Formosa and Japan.

The survivors said that a typhoon which the general unseaworthiness of the ship rendered her unable to ride out, caused the disaster.

A Week on a Raft.
The survivor, whose name is Tokuoka, drifted helplessly on a raft until the wreck for a week before he was picked up by the fishing vessel Chihaya. He had no food and but little water.

Tokuoka said that the freighter began to fill with water soon after leaving Keelung, when she ran into rough weather. The crew worked incessantly at the pumps, seeking to keep down the encroaching sea, but their efforts were unavailing and the steamer went down about midnight on the night of July 11, when she was two days out of port. At that time she was believed to be within 150 miles of Nagasaki.

Several members of the crew survived the sinking, Tokuoka said, and lived for a few days on rafts, but all perished of hunger or thirst before the trawler hove in sight. Tokuoka said he saw one British and one Japanese steamer pass during the time he was adrift on his raft, but that he was too weak to hail either. The Matsuyama Maru had a cargo of 3000 tons, mostly sugar.

NEW CHIEF OF PROHIBITION FIELD FORCES APPOINTED

M. W. Sigler Named to Succeed
Gus O. Nations as Head of Dry Squad.

M. W. Sigler of Bethany, Mo., a general prohibition agent assigned to St. Louis, has been appointed by Prohibition Commissioner Haynes as head of the Missouri field forces of the prohibition enforcement squad, to succeed Gus O. Nations, now a candidate for the Republican nomination for Attorney-General. He will have offices at Kansas City.

Sigler's new office is one of the three prohibition jobs held by Nations before his recent resignation to run for office. The office of group chief at St. Louis is expected to go to General Prohibition Agent William Goshorn, now acting in the capacity of group chief. No one has been named for the post of legal adviser, which Nations also held.

The appointment of Sigler was recommended by State Director de Hart, who also stated recently that he was backing Goshorn for the post of group chief. Nations announced his candidacy for the attorney-generalship on June 4 and his resignation as dry officer a month later.

POSTERS SENT OUT URGING VOTERS TO AID IN PRIMARY

Associated Industries Starts Distribution of 25,000 Notices Throughout State.

The Associated Industries of Missouri today began the distribution of 25,000 posters urging voters to participate in the primary Aug. 5, at which will be selected candidates of the major parties for State and local offices.

The poster, which is being sent throughout the State, bears the sentences: "Help select the candidates for whom you will vote at the primary. Don't let someone do it for you. Primary day is your only chance. Tuesday, Aug. 5, polls open 8 a. m. to 7 p. m."

Elmer Donnell, managing director of the organization, explained that the poster idea had developed last year as a means of getting the party to be displayed to see capable candidates chosen by both parties, the poster had been designed to help get out the vote, he said.

WORKER, TRAPPED BY STEAM IN IDLE BOILER, DIES

William H. Fulkerson, 21 years old, died at St. Joseph's Hospital in Alton at noon yesterday, eight hours after he was burned by steam in a boiler room accident at the plant of the Western Cartridge Co., East Alton.

Fulkerson was working in an idle boiler when another workman, to relieve the pressure in an adjoining boiler, turned the steam into the idle one, unaware of Fulkerson's presence. To escape, Fulkerson was forced to pass through the stream of live steam and was burned from head to foot.

He was the third man to die of injuries suffered in accidents at the Western plant within two weeks.

Protecting the Consumer

The flow of crude oil is uncertain. It follows, therefore, that the resulting supply of gasoline is unsteady.

The most essential feature of the broad and comprehensive service rendered by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in the ten Middle Western states is to turn an uncertain flow of crude oil into a steady, dependable supply of gasoline.

Reliability of supply is the vital need of the millions of automobiles whirling over the hills and the tens of thousands of factories whirling in every great metropolitan center.

Consumers, too frequently, think of crude oil in terms of gushers.

They do not realize that the gusher is only a temperamental display of nature and utterly unreliable for the purpose of doing the world's work.

Only through vast storage facilities, maintained at great expense by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) and other companies in the oil industry, can the motorist rely on a dependable supply of gasoline and lubricants for his car during the height of the touring season.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has a huge investment in farms of steel storage tanks, located at strategic points throughout its territory. These enormous tanks, filled to capacity in the off-season, are mute guarantors of a dependable supply in the rush season.

The experience of 1923 is indicative of just how expensive is maintenance of oil storage. During that year the prices of crude petroleum were changed 105 days out of 365, due to fluctuations in production. From April to December every price change was a reduction—this period covering the heaviest motoring season of the year.

When it is considered that the oil in storage in April went in during the off-season, before the decline in price, it is evident that storage imposes a heavy burden on oil companies.

Holding crude oil and refined oil in storage is merely one of many items of enormous expense that are necessary to complete the cycle of service rendered by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

That these expenses are reflected but slightly in gasoline prices is due to the scientific efficiency entering into all the operations of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

Staten Island Boy's Mother

SUSPECT CAUGHT
BY NEWARK POLICE

Milton Ware, Waiter, Is
leged to Have Confessed Crime, Afterward Repeating His Statement.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, July 21.—Two developments which the police considered important occurred today in the investigation into the murder of 8-year-old Francis McDonnell of Port Richmond, Staten Island.

Achille Epposito was identified by 4½-year-old Albert McDonnell, brother of the murdered lad, the man who had followed Francis into the woods on the day he disappeared.

A rubber ball found in the pocket of Milton Ware, who was arrested in Newark last night, who made and then repudiated a confession that he killed the McDonnell boy, was identified by his mother as her son's toy. "That's my son's ball," McDonnell said, the police ascertained. The plaything was similarly marked with colored three.

Motor-cycle Policeman Piniello arrested Ware in a downtown New York way in Newark yesterday as that time police say he was wearing Edward Lee, 7 years old, of Valley, who also was taken to police headquarters.

It was during a conversation at headquarters that police say Ware admitted the Staten Island slaying and immediately the authorities were notified.

Changed His Name.
When Ware was first arrested he told the police his name was Zenas Smith, and that he lived at 2323 Twenty-third street, New York City, but he later changed according to the authorities.

Epposito, 31 years old, laborer, of Port Richmond, was arrested last night at his home in Staten Island detectives. Captain Van Wagner, in command of the Staten Island detective division, said he was held as material witness in connection with the case.

Capt. Van Wagner asserted that Epposito was preparing to join his wife in Italy within a few days. A statutory offense and served the term of the sentence in Sing Sing completing the term in Clinton prison.

Engaged Passage for Italy.
Detective Sergeant Lewis of Piquette had sought Epposito in the vicinity of his home when he returned from an outing. He was immediately taken to headquarters of the detective division and questioned for several hours by Capt. Van Wagner.

At the end of the interrogation Capt. Van Wagner ordered that Epposito be held without bail as material witness. Sergeant Lewis of Piquette said they searched Epposito's home and found his trunk packed and that he had engaged passage for Italy.

YOUTH KILLED MAN FOR CALLING HIM CHICKEN

By the Associated Press.
CUMBERLAND, Md., July 21.—William Grimm, a youth of 18, was arrested in connection with the slaying of John Wilson, an aged farmer who had been working for Grimm's home near Keyser, W. Va., for several days, confessed last night, a local official said, that he had committed the crime.

"I wanted to get even with him for saying I was his chicken," Sheriff C. E. Nicholson of Adams County, W. Va., quoted Grimm as saying. Grimm is alleged to have said that after shooting the man he carried the body to a wooded place, unloading it beneath a tree of hickory, and then returned to Wilson's shack and searched it, valuations. He found 3 cents. The sheriff found Wilson's body following Grimm's direction.

A Powerful Story of Today
By Charles G. Norris

CHAPTER EIGHTY

THE car rolled smoothly out over the paved highway that circled through the hills. Large, handsome houses with lights shining here and there from windows, and surrounded by tall, gaunt, leafless trees alternated on either side of the road and fled past. Their own vehicle was but one link in a long chain of nimble bugs with glowing antennae which crawled hard upon one another along the winding course.

There came an abrupt turn, the motor car swung up a steep driveway, slid on to crunching gravel, and stopped.

"Here we are!" exclaimed Martin. The chauffeur leaped from his seat and attentively opened the car door.

A large frame house of gracious lines, with exterior stone chimneys, many windows, and a precipitous lawn that swept down to the roadway a hundred feet or more below.

"We get a splendid view of the valley here," said Martin, coming to stand beside Jeannette as she looked out across the country. The landscape was shrouded in dusk, pricked with a myriad of lights; there was a jagged silhouette of distant tree-tops and beyond a pale, mother-of-pearl sky touched faintly with dying pink.

They turned to the house and as Martin stooped to insert his latch-key there was the quick run of small feet within, the door was flung open and a little girl hurried herself upon him with a violent silent hug.

"Well, well," said Martin, "how's my darling?" He kissed her with equal vigor, his hat knocked at an angle upon his head.

"This is 'Tinker,'" he said, smiling at Jeannette. "Everybody calls her 'Tinker,' but her real name's 'Elizabeth.' Where's your brother, Tinker?"

An answering clatter and rush came from an interior region, and a small boy flung himself upon the man.

"And this is Joe, Janey. He has a nickname, too; sometimes we call him 'Josephus'—don't you, old blunderbus?"

There was another vigorous embrace.

The two children regarded Jeannette with shy but friendly glances. The little girl was about nine, the boy two or three years younger. Tinker was brown of skin and brown of eye; her hair was short and tawny and swept off her face in an old-fashioned way, held back by an encircling comb that reached from one temple to the other. She was freckled and had an alert, engaging expression while her brown eyes were sharp as shoe buttons, and twinkled between long tawny eyelashes. Simply, she approached Jeannette and held up her brown arms as she offered her lips. The boy was diminutive and wiry with furtive glance and grinning mouth that displayed a gaping hole left by two missing front teeth. He hung his head as he held out his small hand, but as Jeannette took it, he darted a quick upward look into her face and gave her a friendly elfish grin.

Jeannette was moved, captivated at once by the charm of both.

"They're darlings!" came involuntarily from her, and then there was the sound of descending feet upon the stairs and Jeannette straightened herself from the crouching position in which she had greeted the children to face their mother.

"A pretty woman—and sweet—much younger than I expected," went Jeannette's thoughts; "nothing to fear here."

Ruthie was in truth a pretty woman, pretty without being either beautiful or handsome. Her expression was bright, alert, eager, her manner friendly and effusive. She resembled her small son.

"This is Ruthie, Jeannette—" began Martin.

"How do you do?" said Ruthie, hurrying forward, leaving no doubt of her cordiality. "It was very nice of you to come to us tonight."

"Not at all," Jeannette responded with her best smile. "It was nice of you to want me."

"I was anxious to know you," said Ruthie.

She could afford to be gracious thought Jeannette. She had everything: the home, the children, money, position—she had Martin! Was it possible they were really married? Or did Ruthie merely think she was his wife?

Jeannette was piloted upstairs to a large, pleasant bedroom. The chairs, the tables, the bureau and chiffonier, the twin beds were all of bright bird's-eye maple; rose hangings were at the windows, rose silk comforters were neatly folded at the foot of each bed, rose shades on the wall lights diffused a soft rosy radiance. The dressing-table glittered with silver toilet articles, and Jeannette noticed they were all monogrammed "R. T. D." Flanking them were large silver-framed photographs, one of Martin—a handsome, fierce-looking man in evening dress—the other of the two children, Tinker with her arm about her brother. Domesticity radiated everywhere.

"I never looked better," Jeannette thought consolingly, as she caught a full-length reflection of herself in the long mirror impaled in the bathroom door. Her hair pleased her; her high color was most becoming; she knew herself to be beautiful. She went downstairs, serene and confident, sure of being able to carry off the evening with lightness and ease.

"I thought it would be quieter and perhaps a little pleasanter without the children at table," said Ruthie brightly as Jeannette joined her, "so I arranged to give them an early supper, and now Martin's been scolding me. He thinks you'll be disappointed."

"Oh, it doesn't matter," Jeannette murmured.

"Martin's almost unreasonable about them; he wants them all the time," continued Ruthie. "I tell him if he had them on his hands all day, perhaps he wouldn't be quite so enthusiastic!" She laughed an amused little laugh like the twittering of a bird. "He couldn't be fonder of them if they were his own," she added.

There was a moment's pause.

"You see, I'd lost my first husband before I met Martin," Ruthie continued thoughtfully. "My first marriage wasn't very successful."

She did think she was married then!

"You were divorced?" asked Jeannette. If there was a barb to the question it failed in effect.

"No; Mr. Mason was killed. He was—was rather intemperate, and there was an accident. I met Martin some time afterwards and he was wonderful to me."

"You've known him long?"

"Let me see. About seven years. Joe was only a baby, and we were living in Scranton. Martin and I married about a year after my husband's death. I was having a very hard time of it; Mr. Mason carried but very little life insurance and I took up mangle-making; I had to; there was no other way for us to get along."

She smiled at the last.

He was sorry for her, thought Jeannette; that was the way of it. "That had been your—your profession formerly?" Jeannette asked with an innocent air.

"No, I had to learn it," Ruthie said, unruffled. "I had to do something. I only did private work, you know." She cast a quick glance at Jeannette's face. "Martin and I didn't meet in a barber shop!" she added with a bright laugh.

Jeannette could think of nothing to say to this, so she nodded, and gazed into the red coals of the grate fire before which the two women were standing.

"Here he is!" Ruthie said, suddenly.

Martin's step could be heard approaching and in a moment he entered the living room. Jeannette noticed he had changed into dinner clothes.

MARRIAGE AS A REFUGE

By Sophie Irene Loeb

A YOUNG woman asks me to write about the "crime" of girls taking to marriage as a refuge. She tells how various friends of hers have married just to get away from work in the office, factory and department store, and have not found the new life as they had expected.

Some of them have gone back to work, while others are tied down to children and drudgery. When any young woman marries as a means to bettering her material existence in common parlance a "meal ticket"—that girl gets just that and no more.

She is the clinging vine who usually finds that her sturdy oak husband has sought co-operation and that he has not only expected to marry a playmate but a help-mate. She has gone on the theory that she has given up work and has to be supported.

What she really finds is that she has to work in a different way—perhaps a way that is not very much to her liking. Many young women who spend most of their time in the business world are not much given to that of housekeeping.

And the refuge that they have looked forward to becomes a place of restraint—restraint of going it alone, as they have been accustomed to—and then as a general thing this kind of marriage ends up in the Domestic Relations Court and the woman goes back to work.

Both are disappointed. There is only one reason for anybody marrying in the twentieth century, and that is for love. And don't marry for love unless you are fairly sure it is the real thing.

You have only to look around you to see the importance of this. If nothing more, if people are poor they have a fighting chance to go through life together.

If people marry for any other reason than love they have a chance for fighting and they usually do. Much better to remain on your job, feel the pleasure of your own paycheck and no one to say you may when you want to do anything or go anywhere. You have no one to lean on but yourself and therefore you have full opportunity to please yourself.

In this day and age it is never too late to marry. As I have said before, the term "old maid" has lost its sting. There is no such thing. It is much better to be self-respecting, making your own way and having peace than to give up all freedom just for the sake of getting some one to provide for you.

Any woman who marries for this prime purpose has the wrong attitude anyway. She is an unequal partner and demanding too much. On the other hand, she who has some consideration and love for the man she marries will rather regret that she is giving him the burden of herself and want to help to alleviate it in order to help him.

When a girl takes to marriage as a means of getting away from work by putting it on some one else she is not made of the right stuff for marriage and proves it; but she pays, pays, pays. In plain language, she gets what is coming to her—trials and tribulations.

Marry for love. Even if you have to work there is something to which to cling. Any "meal ticket" gets worn out because it is material. Love is spiritual and will bear anything if it is real.

If you are at the seashore defer bathing until two or three hours after eating and be sure you are fully rested and complete reaction has been obtained before you partake of food after the bath.

Divided Attention

HEARTLESS creature! Are you really disinterested in and unaffected by all the phrases this man is pouring out of his soul? Or are you just pretending to be dividing your attention? Perhaps you are fumbling with the radio in the hope that somewhere in the air there are soft, sweet strains of melody that will make the scene complete.

—a beautiful night, the flickering light of the lanterns, the fragrance from the garden, poetry of love and music! If that is your purpose, we forgive you—and beg pardon for intrusion! But if it isn't, we suspect you are heartless because you've already given your heart away.

"Everything About the House Helps to Make the Home"

By WANDA BARTON

Why Good Furniture Really Pays—The Newest Furniture

LONG ago, five sisters were called upon to divide their mother's household goods between them. After four had chosen what they would like, the fifth sister said, "Well, girls, I don't want much, but what I have, I want good." This is the way intelligent people feel about what they buy for their homes. It is not quantity, but quality that counts.

In the old days, young people establishing a home did not buy a lot of things at once unless they were very wealthy. Instead, they acquired their furniture piece by piece until they had all that was needed. This is a wise plan, for we do not know what we want until we move into a house and humanize it. Then we learn just what would look best in the space allotted for furniture.

Today, pieces of furniture of certain periods, though not matching in design, are being chosen, each for its own particular beauty. The beauty of the wood, the hardware used and the appeal of the design govern the choice.

Pieces of the same period are bound to show some interchangeable points, even though they are not in matching sets. Among good to her—trials and tribulations. Marry for love. Even if you have to work there is something to which to cling. Any "meal ticket" gets worn out because it is material. Love is spiritual and will bear anything if it is real.

The use of metal beds, which are excellent for hotels, hospitals, servants' quarters and country summer cottages, is not favored in furnishing a home. Wooden beds add a "homey touch" that is more pleasing. Reproductions of the old English furniture makers which have been popular for many years, are being rather pushed aside for the incoming French styles. Much of this furniture comes in pale walnut, a little richer in color than the classic, relieved with a tiny gold leaf decoration that hardly shows except in faint, pleasing contrast. For instance, there are long, low sideboards with convenient doors, each of which is decorated with delicate gold flowers in the center, giving the effect of inland work. Spider-legged tables are among the fascinating pieces of this period revival. A charming extension table has cut corners and center decorative panels that make it a piece to be desired. The tall, narrow French chests of drawers fit into many places conveniently. They are so good-looking that one does not object because they hold less than the heavy English chests.

This is a day when a spade is called a spade. An ultramodern bride told her friends frankly that she had been to a certain furniture shop and chosen things she wanted for the furnishing of her home and had left the list there, where they might look it over in selecting her bride who has the courage of her convictions.

Painted bedroom furniture is charming with rugs and hangings that are harmonious. But the moment it grows shabby, if it is not done over at once, it looks very unattractive. Though this furniture is reasonable in price, it is not cheap, but it looks cheap when it is allowed to grow shabby. It may be washed readily with white soap and soft water, then polished with a soft, waxed cloth, which keeps it fresh-looking for some time. But when the paint begins to chip and wear, there is nothing to do but repaint.

White enamel furniture is suitable for the nursery and bathroom and for a young girl's room, but for a city bedroom it seems cold and is unsatisfactory. Bird's-eye and curly maple make charming furniture for young people's bedrooms. We may have thought that with the passing of the Victorian era we said farewell to walnut furniture, but it is with us again, and we are glad to see it once more, for it is a warm, colorful and delightful wood.

Vacation Suggestions

If you are spending your vacation in the country it is well to remember that it is the three-leaved ivy that is poisonous. If poisoned with ivy, oak or dogwood, rub the affected parts with a solution of saleratus water, using two teaspoonfuls to two cupfuls of water, then apply cloths wet with extract of witch hazel.

If you are going to camp take the fireless cooker with you if you can possibly manage it. Fitching camp within reach of a farmhouse is an advantage when it comes to the culinary part of the outfit.

Face peeling is a painful condition vacationists who indulge in outdoor sports often must contend with. You can avert this if you just lightly rub a little fresh cream into the face before going out. The top of the milk will do if there is no cream on hand. Then at night rub in some good cold cream.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Keep Away From Trouble. Don't take a chance with very fine silks and muslins, but iron them with a piece of cambric laid over them.

In the Tea Caster. A small piece of dried orange peel in the teapot gives the tea a pleasing flavor and makes a less expensive blend taste like an imported brand.

Copying Fillet Patterns. It is pretty difficult to copy fillet patterns from newspaper diagrams, and perhaps the easiest method on the eyes is to draw a pencil through each line as it is finished.

Good for You. Stewed rhubarb is so good for the system that we like to see each member of the family eating some. Sometimes a dab of whipped cream on the serving will do the trick.

The Soap Shaker. No kitchen is complete without a soap shaker. All bits of soap that accumulate in the house may be put therein, and a few shakes in the dish water will mean a lovely lather. All boiling down of soap is avoided if this utensil is used.

As a safety first precaution, carry lemons when traveling. Whenever you drink water, squeeze the juice of a lemon into the glass of water.

Never Wash Hosiery

How to make it last

CHIFFON hose of similar, sunburst, French made. Never wear stockings so short, or in such delicate shades.

Only with proper care can they be made to last. Less the light Lux suds they go after every wearing. Lux is so pure it won't damage the delicate fibers, nor fade the delicate color. Use Lux always for your modish hosiery. Lower Boston Co., Cambridge, Mass.

MEDICATIONS MARRIAGE

By HELEN LAND

Now is the time to choose a wife—by daylight.

Most of the year a man and a woman are married by lamplight, candle-light, electric light or by the honest daylight. They can get a good, clear view of each other by lamplight, candle-light, electric light or by the honest daylight.

It is called the season of romance, but more romances are wrecked by the revelations of daylight than are born of the magic moonlight.

This is the melting season when the man turns to paste, paint mingling with perspiration, and the woman turns to paste, paint mingling with perspiration, and the man turns to paste, paint mingling with perspiration, and the woman turns to paste, paint mingling with perspiration.

It is the golden opportunity to discover how her "Sheik" looks without a tailcoat, how much of her love she has been wasting on a tailcoat.

It is the chance of a man to see just how much of a girl's "beauty" comes off in the wash, and how much of her love she has been wasting on a tailcoat.

It is the time when a man can see just how good a sport and how good a cook his wife is, and how long she can keep her temper under trying conditions.

It is the time when a man can see just how much of a woman's "beauty" comes off in the wash, and how much of her love she has been wasting on a tailcoat.

BEING UNFAIR TO YOUR BOY

By Wm. A. McKeever.

Lecturer and Authority on Educational and Sociological Subjects.

RECENTLY I passed in front of two splendid city homes before which I felt like flouting the motto, "These places are unfair to boys."

Why such ill-will toward perfectly respectable citizens, you ask? It is this: These two families have each a 15-year-old boy who is spending the summer in idleness. It is true that the youths are wearing the garb of idleness, and they tinker a bit daily about the car and the garage; but that is the extent of their labors. Each afternoon they go out driving and spend an hour or two at the beach. Also, they go out considerably at night.

No, these boys are not at all bad. They are not in any sense immoral. I believe they are regular church attendants. But they are growing soft and negative at a time when they should be seasoning their bodies and strengthening their wills through rigorous industry.

There is absolutely no substitute for work, a part-time schedule of actual employment of the hands and muscles, during the critical "teen years. The lack of it means a later tendency to shirk duty, to give up a difficult project, to become tired and discouraged without sufficient cause.

The many cases of dependency which I have examined have revealed a weak and devitalized physique, low muscular development, and a sluggish circulation. A persistent regimen of exercise and a bit of reorganization of the thought habits will do wonders, I find, by way of dispelling "the blues." Now, these underworked boys are certainly in a course leading toward mental misery. They will suffer from "tired" feelings during the warm season and at the time of normal exertion, and they will come to believe that the whole world is tired and lazy like themselves.

Work is the remedy. Get your boy a job. Menial labor is better than idling. Walking behind a team in a plow field would be better for him than merely pushing on the gas with one toe in a high-power machine. Pulling weeds in a potato patch would prove in the long run a far better tonic for his soul than his present practice of back-sitting in the warm sand with a row of beach bachelors.

The right amount of work is a joy. Part time labor, if balanced with play and recreation, imparts force and character and qualities of mind as nothing else can do. For your 15-year-old son to spend an entire summer without his share of industrial experience amounts to an attack on his growing personality and an insult to the society of tomorrow. Get him a job and make him stick to it.

Famous Women.

MARIA THERESA PARADIES was born in Vienna in 1753 and was remarkable for her life and her musical talent. At the age of 4 years and 8 months she lost her eyesight. When 7 years old she was taught to play the piano and received singing lessons.

Three years later she sang in the Church of St. Augustine, at Vienna, accompanying herself on the organ. The Empress Maria Theresa, who was present, immediately gave her an annuity of 200 florins. In 1784 she set out on a musical tour of Europe and everywhere excited admiration for her talents and pity for her affliction.

Her memory was astonishing, for she dictated all her compositions note by note. During the latter part of her life she presided over an excellent musical institution in Vienna.

Happy Jack Squirrel Is Neighborly

Be neighborly if you would gain
The most from daily living pains.

—Farmer Brown's Boy.

"Gracious!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "Am I seeing double?"

ROYAL S. COPELAND M.D.
UNITED STATES SENATOR FROM NEW YORK
FORMER COMMISSIONER OF HEALTH, NEW YORK CITY

SOME diseases are always found with complications or accompanying trouble.

Anemia, kidney disturbances, diabetes and a general run-down condition are usually accompanied by boils.

The disagreeable things may come in "crops" or they may come singly. No matter how they come they are equally painful. They may appear anywhere on the body. As a rule, however, they are most commonly found on the neck, face, arms, buttocks and legs. One of the most painful of the small boils is the boil that sometimes appears in the ear or the nose.

Germs are such common things and so readily find entrance to the body that you will not be surprised when I tell you that a germ is the cause of boils.

Usually persons with lowered vitality and poor general health are most susceptible to boils.

The difference between a boil and the ordinary abscess or infection is that the boil always has a "core" or hard center.

Many persons make the grave mistake of squeezing the boil all the time. This is the wrong thing to do. Every time you squeeze a boil you break down the surrounding tissues, allowing the infection to spread.

I do not mean that boils should not be opened to allow the pus to come out. I do mean, however, that continued opening and squeezing is harmful.

It is always wise to consult your doctor if you have a boil. He may be able to prevent your having several more boils.

There are vaccines for many forms of disease. One that has done good in the autogenous vaccine made from the pus of the infection.

If you are a victim of boils there is much you can do for yourself. Make sure you are not constipated—keep the bowels open.

Black Pussy or Bowser the Hound.

But with the coming of spring Happy Jack's visits were less frequent. On some days he didn't come at all. Farmer Brown's Boy, had missed him for several days. Then early one morning he discovered Happy Jack frisking about in a maple tree close to the house. Happy Jack seemed to be in high spirits. He seemed to be bubbling over with joy. Farmer Brown's Boy had seen him very happy before, but never quite as happy as he appeared this morning.

Farmer Brown's Boy went back into the house to get a special tid-bit for Happy Jack's breakfast. When he came out and looked up in the maple tree he rubbed both eyes. Yes, sir, he did just that. He rubbed them twice. Then he looked again and rubbed them for a third time. "Gracious!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "Am I seeing double? It looks to me as if there are two Happy Jacks up in that tree."

It did look that way, for there was another Gray Squirrel up there. When Farmer Brown's Boy saw them close together he saw that this second Squirrel was a little smaller than Happy Jack. Then he guessed right away who it was. It was Mrs. Happy Jack. Yes, sir, that is who it was. Happy Jack had found a mate over in the Green Forest, and he had brought her over to Farmer Brown's.

Happy Jack ran over to Farmer Brown's Boy and took some of the food from his fingers. Then he scampered back to the maple tree. Mrs. Happy Jack was bashful, or perhaps she was timid. Though Farmer Brown's Boy coaxed and coaxed, she wouldn't come down from the maple tree. No, sir, she wouldn't come from that tree.

Then Happy Jack began to coax. He would run down the tree half way to Farmer Brown's Boy, then back up the tree to Mrs. Happy Jack. He did it over and over again. It was plain that he was trying to make her understand that everything was safe and all right. But Mrs. Happy Jack couldn't get up her courage to come down from the tree, so Farmer Brown's Boy left some food where she could get it and went back to the house. He wondered if Happy Jack and Mrs. Happy Jack would go back to the Green Forest to stay.

THE MALE CAT.

THE female cat scratches—but the male cat has The Claws! In school he always runs for an office that will give him an opportunity to use them—

Such as Chairman of the Will and Prophecy Committee. He compliments the boy who has remained six years in high school.

Upon his long record of service. Presenting the gifts to the class celebrities on class night.

He says to the sweetest girl in school: "Sweetie to the sweet. To you a bottle of vinegar."

He describes one boy as the missing link. And says that another proves that the theory a perfect vacuum cannot exist is a mistaken one. He offers one celebrity a balloon like herself, "empty and full of hot air."

He hopes that the class grind will make good use of a Chinese Dictionary—

In China. He avenges personal slights and injuries. By means of his feline, bitterly prejudiced "witticisms" (They really aren't very funny, either!)

But he can only give criticism with a smile—he refuses to take it.

Or why, when he distributes "knocks," does he tactfully forget That HE has been elected "the most girlish boy?"

Why doesn't he tie a hair ribbon about his baby brow And take a joke on himself like a good sport—instead of a cat!

Vital Details
of a Trip
Into the Middle-West.Finds Only
One Way
Elevators
in Hotel
in Cleveland.

Dear Editor:

I seem like I am overwhelmed by people calling up to find out the intimate details of my little trip to the Middle West and back so it looks like I better tell them in alphabet order.

In the 1st place I was sent out to report the Republican convention in Cleveland and when I am sent out on a trip like that I always take with me the woman I have often referred to as the wife and when we go together she always insists on a drawing room as she draws very well and never took a lesson in her life. Added to which she always likes privacy while traveling, so we got on board of the train and withdrew into our drawing room and I wished you had seen the privacy.

In the first place along come Bill Rogers, the rope thrower, and afterwards along come Dr. Herbert B. Swope and Heywood Brown and Arthur Krook of the N. Y. World and it kept getting so private that finally the conductor come in and asked was it a special train we had ordered. I says no does it look like a special train and he says no it looks and sounds more like a chauntauqua.

One of our young visitors, Dr. Swope, finally asked what car it is we are on and I says I engaged it on the theory that it was a sleeping car but what a fine chance to sleep. So they took the hint and went to their own car, namely, a day coach, and the next thing I know a boy was rapping at the door and says he is Cleveland. So we took a death dealing taxi and went to what I laughingly refer to as our hotel.

Our suite, consisting of two rooms and a ventilator, was located on the 7th floor and you could get up there O. K. but you could not get down no more during the convention as the elevator was a one way street. But it did not make much difference as the windows were all open and faced right on the public square where they had a radio receiving station and you could hear what was going on at the convention which was much better than being at the convention proper because you could always shut the window.

Finally along about the second day the Mrs. says she would like to go to Detroit and I says why, they're no convention in Detroit and she says oh yes they're always a convention in Detroit and usually they ain't so loud so she went down the fire escape on acct. of the elevator always going up. After she went I remembered the old saying about Peter to pay Paul and slumped down the fire escape until I heard Mr. Burton nominate Mr. Coolidge. This was a big surprise to everybody as they had all expected him to nominate Al Jennings. Then they looked in a telephone directory and called up a lot of numbers long distance to see would anybody take 3d place on the ticket and they could not locate nobody but Mr. Dwyer and I went back to the hotel and checked out leaving only a typewriter and extra typewriter ribbon.

The next idea was go to Chicago and spend a few days in a hotel where the elevators was running both ways and try and get a few days rest including a meal. In regards to how much rest you can get in Chicago these days the lease said the moonest mended. Thence to Niles, Michigan, where you don't need an elevator to get up or down and the meals is served all on 1 floor and finely moved on to Detroit to pick up the woman I refer to as the Mrs.

We got on the board of a new wonderful train which they got running out of Detroit to N. Y. city and it is suppose to leave Detroit at 7:10 in the evening and arrive in N. Y. city the next A. M. at 9:20. But along somewhere between Buffalo and Rochester there was a noise like Big Bertha and a big electric storm swept over us and knocked down a tree which fell over our track. Everybody got up to find out what was the matter and the conductor and a man named George who turned out to be the porter told us that it was nothing to worry about as it was just a tree that has been struck by lightning but not to fret as lightning never struck twice in the same place. This was small comfort as the train was still moving. Finally it begin moving backwards to get out of the way of the freight trains and etc. and it was 6 hours late but the conductor says you should not fret about that as it means you will get some money back in N. Y. on acct. of this being extra fare. When he said extra fare he certainly was not referring to the dining car.

Anyhow we finely reached what I have nicknamed the metropolis and got off of this star train and come out to Long Island and my male quartette was standing on the porch and sang a welcome song called welcome home from the middle west, that is a great country but this is best, but anyway parents we are glad to see that you have come back to your family.

ALL BIG ONES.
LIVES of fishermen remind us
We can fish and fish all day.
And departing leave behind us
Eight or ten that got away.

SEEK HAS.
We claim without fear of successful contradiction that Mrs. Rosa
M. Hoote has the greatest one-horse stable in the world.

Babe Ruth says the Yankees are fighting mail. Being bumped and jostled all over the track by the Senators is enough to peeve any-

Davis, increased 300 per cent
population between 1910 and 1920.
Somebody must have had twins.

The man on the sandbox says
that inasmuch as the street car track is the only safety zone for pedestrians crossing a wide street,
any motorist driving on said street car track should be knocked off at sunrise or as near thereto as feasible.

MEN NOT PLATFORMS.
Why worry about platforms?
The few who have read them
couldn't tell you what's in them right now.

Joe Haines pitched a no-hit no-run game against Boston. But you don't know the half of it. He pitched the Cards out of the calder in the same time.

More Tolls on Ferguson, Mo.

With Shaver managing his campaign Davis ought to win out at the barber poles.

The man on the sandbox says
what a Utopia this world would be if everybody were as good as the candidates running for office.

Square deals, golden rules, brotherly love, even-handed justice,
open-book lives 'n' everything.

Far be it from any candidate to hide his light under a bushel.
Wouldn't be doing his country, his constituents or his conscience justice.

Furthermore the largest bushel
made wouldn't hide the smallest political light.

"Man Gets 2 Years for Carrying Pistol."
Maybe he didn't know it was loaded.

"Two Lives Are Given Freedom
by Gov. Hyde."
"Pardon me, Governor, all my fault."

Under the direct primary life is just one damn campaign after another, as the feller says.

After campaigning for weeks and weeks to get the nomination the worst is yet to come.

Perhaps Jack Dempsey has decided to take a rest from the political book and fight only once every four years.

QUESTION RAISED
AT ALLIED MEETING ON SECURITY OF GERMAN LOAN

MacDonald Tells Conference That Agreement on Sanctions Is Not Deemed Satisfactory.

AMERICAN BANKERS
OBJECT TO PLAN

Thomas W. Lamont Reminds Herriot That Money Is to Be Loaned to Reich, Not France.

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON,
London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
Copyright, 1936, by the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
LONDON, July 21.—From MacDonald's explosion of a bombshell among the principals at the allied conference which is seeking a way to make the Dawes report effective, yesterday, by stating that the agreement reached on sanctions and default by Subcommittee No. 1 was not thought by the principal prospective backers of the German loan to represent a sound enough security.

The British Premier's announcement followed a private discussion with Charles E. Hughes, American Secretary of State. That appears to have been the starting point of the present hitch or deadlock, as is variously described.

As usual, both in war and in peace, when things are going badly the lid has been shut down on information, and only vague or misleading euphemisms are available through official sources. After discussions in America, British, French, Belgian and Italian circles, I believe the actual facts can be sketched with some approach to accuracy under the reservation that as a whole the position is enveloped in the fog of diplomacy and that certainty in all details is not obtainable.

Objections to the agreement reached by the subcommittee are either British or American in origin. It is certain they were vehemently upheld by important British bankers. They appear to be based on the belief that such concessions were made to France that the security offered for the loan is illusory.

In particular, article 4, under which sanctions are taken against Germany, is being attacked. It is guaranteed and is based on the proceeds of the sanctions—denounced in both British and American banking circles. It is freely stated here, although I cannot confirm this, that these provisions have the support of Secretary Hughes.

It is charged by the French that the British are behind this move which is described as going back on an accomplished bargain, and that the Americans have been put up by the British as stalking horses to bear the blame. I believe this view is wrong, and that the grounds of the present demand for real security for the loan and for good will on the part of Germany have been the Americans acting with the British, and that it has the support of Secretary Hughes.

Intense activity among the big bankers followed MacDonald's surprise at the morning meeting of the "big five"—the Premier of England, France and Belgium, Finance Minister of Britain, Italy, and Ambassador Kellogg. British, French, Belgian, Italian and American bankers, including the French Finance Minister, met with Sir Oswald Mordaunt.

Question of Security Raised.

Following this there was a meeting of the Chancellor Mordaunt's room in the House of Commons of Mr. Clementel, Mr. Hoover, Mr. Robert Henderson, British Finance Minister, Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, and Thomas W. Lamont, who for the first time thus emerged in the open in these negotiations.

At this meeting it is believed the question of security for the loan was canvassed and that a serious clash arose between Anglo-American insistence on the interests of the lenders and the French demand for the right of separate action against Germany in the event of a default and a subsequent failure of the allies to agree on positive measures.

Another point of contention arose was the position of an American official on the Reparations Commission. Since the agreement by the subcommittee of an amendment to the Versailles treaty committed on Page 5, Column 4.
